

2008 Beijing International Congress on Women in Music

The International Alliance for Women in Music (IAWM) and The China Conservatory of Music (CCM) are pleased to announce the 2008 Beijing Congress on Women in Music to be held on the CCM campus April 18-22. The government of the City of Beijing has approved the dates and location.

CCM will introduce its new Performing Arts Center to Beijing audiences by offering the Grand Concert Hall for the Congress orchestral performances and the elegant Chamber Concert Hall for recitals of chamber music. The Congress Artistic Committee in Beijing has selected the music and the paper and panel presentations from over 200 submissions from more than 20 countries, more than 100 women composers and musicologists. Participants will share the rich musical traditions by women of their own countries as well as be stimulated by both colorful traditional and innovative contemporary music from other lands, especially Asian. We will have the opportunity to establish and renew international friendships.

All interested persons are invited to register for this extraordinary international conference. Accommodations and meals will be available at a nearby 3-star hotel at a very reasonable rate. On the fourth day, we can go by bus to the Summer Palace, the Great Wall and other points of interest.

Information about registration, accommodations and international travel for the Congress will be posted online at <http://www.iawm.org>

We look forward to seeing you in Beijing.
